

Thornlands House

Filling a spacious room with a functional, flowing progression of amenities and practical, luxurious spaces this beautiful master en suite and pamper zone provides a young couple with a retreat in which to bathe away the stresses of the day.

The free-standing bath and feature wall toward the centre of the space sets an overall theme in the expansive room, creating a focal point when entering the en suite. Its strategic positioning reduces the visual depth, giving the room a sense of privacy and cosy warmth that it might otherwise lack.

A Caesarstone shelf finished at bath-height has been incorporated into the feature wall, a nod to functionality that provides the perfect location for the 300mm custom-made wave bath spout, a subtle but glorious feature. In keeping with the client's request for an open shower, the wall also serves as a room divider, providing the necessary privacy for an oversized, open-ended shower space. It also provides the perfect placement for two built-in tiled recesses. His and Her shower rails and a luxurious rain shower provide an indulgent, balanced shower space.

The large vanity benchtop in 'Organic White' Caesarstone once again restores visual balance to the room. Understated but modern, the Icon wall-mounted mixers enhance the contemporary style of the space and create a distinct feature out of the large vessel basins.

Adjacent to the vanity, a separate seated make-up area features a floor-to-ceiling mirror and make up lights for task lighting. The casual seating area provides the ideal place to get ready in style and comfort. Smart storage is incorporated in a slim line drawer, providing easy access to the hair dryer and hair straightener, which are able to remain plugged in if desired. The placement of the louvered window between both the make-up table and vanity ensures there is abundant natural light to these areas.

Stylish and effortlessly modern, this individual bathroom is easy to maintain and complements the style of the contemporary home. Suited to the lifestyle of the young couple it serves, the beautiful, balanced space flows naturally and is truly private and comfortable.
